WITNESSES SAY THEY SAW HENRY STEVENS SEPT. 14

Corroboration of His Alibi Given Today in Murder Case

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Defense in the trial of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Willie and Henry Stevens, for the murder of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, announced again today that Willie Stevens would be called to the stand "at the proper time."

Henry Stevens, first of the defendants was on the stand the greater part of Saturday.

Mrs. Anna Evanson, cook for the Henry Stevens family, was the first witness today.

"Do you remember Thursday, Sept. 14, 1922?" asked Clarence L. Case, defense counsel.

"Yes."

"Do you remember whether you got supper for Henry Stevens that night?"

"Yes."

Supper was served about 6 p. m. she said and she went home about 7.

Corroborated Stevens.

Mrs. Evanson's testimony corroborated the story which Henry Stevens told on the stand.

A few days ago, Simpson announced in court that Mrs. Evanson was missing and his line of cross-examination was apparently in the direction of attempting to prove that the defense had hidden witnesses from his investigators.

Prosecutor Simpson attempted to confuse the witness with questions concerning the month and the dates of days in the weeks before the murder.

Howard Prince, the next witness, said he had seen Henry Stevens on the beach at 9:55 p. m. This was but a few minutes before the time the state contended the murders were committed. Simpson subjected this witness also to a rattling fire of questions.

Woman Uncertain.

Mrs. Mazie Applegate, wife of Arthur Applegate who caught the blue fish that was weighed by Henry Stevens, was then called.

She corroborated Stevens' alibi and was positive that she saw Henry Stevens around 10 p. m. on the night of the killings. Her husband in an affidavit to the prosecutor was uncertain as to the date the blue fish was caught.

"If you're wrong about the blue fish being caught on the night of Sept. 14, your whole story's wrong, isn't it?" Simpson asked on cross-examination.

"Yes," she replied.

After Mrs. Applegate had left the stand her husband was called.

Like the other alibi witnesses, he said he was fishing on the beach at Lavallette the evening of Sept. 14, 1922. His wife, he said, was with him.

The witness was cross-examined by Simpson in an attempt to bring out differences in the present testimony and that given before the grand jury.

Witness Untried.

Despite his confusion and inability to follow the rapid-fire interrogations of the prosecutor, the fisherman was not terrified.

"I've got little sympathy in my heart and that's more than you have," he told Simpson.

Then Case told the witness on re-direct examination.

"Were you called any names when you made the two statements for the state?" he asked.

"Yes, I was called a damned liar," Applegate replied. "This man right here did it," he pointed to Inspector Underwood, who was in charge of the questioning of witnesses in the investigation.

Saw Him on Beach.

John Plar, of Philadelphia was the next witness. He told of seeing Henry Stevens in Lavallette about 7 p. m. the evening of Sept. 14, 1922.

Plar said he walked on the beach a short time Thursday evening and during his walk saw Henry Stevens. He also saw Stevens the next morning in the station at Lavallette.

The witness was returning to Philadelphia for an operation.

"Was there anything to fix in your

PRINCESS ILEANA GIVES HER AUTO TO INJURED POLICEMAN AND WALKS TO APARTMENT

New York, Nov. 22.—(AP)—World War veterans of "The Dugout," a club for disabled soldiers, today looked forward to the receipt of a photograph of one of the handsomest queens in Europe and a good looking princess who is not above walking home so that an injured policeman could be taken to a hospital in her automobile.

Queen Marie and Princess Ileana of Rumania visited The Dugout yesterday with General Pershing. They were offered souvenirs made by the men and the Princess selected a lampshade with a ship on it. She offered to send her photograph in return.

"We'll send a photograph of both of us," said the Queen, "but on condition that you hang it out where the men can see it, and not in the officials' room. We want the men to have something to remember us by."

While the Princess was driving her car, Eugene Roberts, one of her motorcycle escorts, collided with an automobile, and was slightly injured. She got out and helped him into her own machine then she and her companion walked several blocks to the Ambassador Hotel, where the royal party made its headquarters for the day.

The program for the Queen and Princess today included a visit to the grave of Theodore Roosevelt at Oyster Bay.

Tomorrow afternoon will be spent shopping. Their ship, the Berengaria sails at 10 a. m. Wednesday.

After sketching possibilities offered by creation of a 12,000 mile water transportation system through the heart of the country, by the utilization of the Mississippi system, the Great Lakes and the projected canal to the Atlantic, he touched upon the controversies involving the latter project with a plea for the expenditure "of money on cement and steel rather than upon the courts and political agitation."

Development of the Mississippi waterways for transportation purposes is of great importance to a large section of the country and should go on as rapidly as financial resources will permit, President Coolidge said in a letter read today at the opening session of the convention.

The president's letter, addressed to James E. Smith, president of the association, follows:

"Much to my regret I find it impossible to accept your invitation to make an address at the eighth annual convention of the Mississippi Valley Association, to be held in St. Louis, the latter part of this month. I cannot refrain, however, from sending a word to emphasize my interest in the principal matter to be considered.

"In my messages to congress I have expressed my opinion on the development of the waterways of the Mississippi for transportation purposes is of great importance to a large section of our country. I want this work to go on as rapidly as our financial resources will permit. To that end I had an additional item of ten million dollars put into the present budget.

"Your association can be most helpful in crystallizing public sentiment in considering and suggesting the best ways in which your waterways may be improved so as to furnish the maximum of service to your people and to the nation at large."

There was no protest against water diversion at Chicago until "great power interests" of New York and along the St. Lawrence river discovered tremendous potential value to them had been slipping away toward the gulf for 20 years. Representative C. A. Newton of Missouri association said.

"Diversion at Chicago began in 1900 and for approximately 20 years there was no agitation or protest," he said. "It was then that they raised a cry to the effect that the harbors of the Great Lakes were being impaired by lowering of lake levels. As a matter of fact, there are few if any harbors of the Great Lakes which are not much deeper today than when diversion began."

Low Level Reached.

Reviewing the cycles of rise and fall in Great Lakes levels, Newton declared that the lowering as a result of Chicago's diversion has been complete for 20 years and that if diversion should be continued for a century, no further lowering would result.

"Evidence of the cunning of the propaganda (against diversion) has been the skill with which it has featured navigation possibilities of the St. Lawrence river while it has kept the interests of the power combine in the background," said Newton.

"The thing they have not featured is that improvement of the St. Lawrence river, which will cost approximately a billion dollars, will create electricity to the extent of 5,000,000 horse power, and that of that amount, 2,250,000 will be generated in Canada while only 150,000 horsepower will be generated in the United States. They have not featured the further fact that the Canadian government has declared that in the future they will not permit power generated in Canada to be transported to the United States, but will require factories using it, to be on Canadian soil."

PRESIDENT FOR DEVELOPMENT OF MISS. WATERWAYS

Thinks Plans of Great Importance to Big Part of Country

St. Louis, Nov. 22.—(AP)—A broader national policy toward development of inland waterways and water resources generally is now in course of promulgation.

This was disclosed in a prepared address today by Secretary Hoover, here as the principal speaker on the Mississippi Valley Association program.

After sketching possibilities offered by creation of a 12,000 mile water transportation system through the heart of the country, by the utilization of the Mississippi system, the Great Lakes and the projected canal to the Atlantic, he touched upon the controversies involving the latter project with a plea for the expenditure "of

OFFICE "SHOT UP" SATURDAY, SUNDAY NIGHTS

Central Illinois Gangsters Thought to be Attackers

Harrisburg, Ill., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Deputy United States Marshal Zach Leitsch said today unidentified men in automobiles had fired into his office here Saturday night and again last night.

Deputy Leitsch said he was in his office with his brother, W. H. Leitsch, and J. E. White Saturday night about 9:35 o'clock when about a dozen shots were fired from the street, four of which entered his office.

He said one shot was fired into his office about 7:45 o'clock last night and he and his brother ran out and returned the fire but the attackers were lost in the traffic. His office is at 110 A. East Poplar street.

Elizabeth—Lead-mining operations on a large scale will be started here within a few weeks, it is understood, as a result of discoveries made by prospectors on the John W. Gill farm west of Elizabeth, and on several farms along the north shore of Apple river.

W. L. Pratt plans to sink several holes at a place known as Weston. Alfred Davey and Gilbert Hutchison, experienced miners who returned from the west several months ago, will be active in the reopening of new lead mines near here, it is understood, and John Leibel is getting ready to resume operation of the old Haggerty lead mine. Chicago capital is interested with him in this enterprise, it is understood.

That paying shafts will be uncovered in the belief of those planning a resumption of mining operations here.

FALL-DOHENY'S TRIAL STARTED IN WASHINGTON

Case is Expected to Occupy Month in Determination

Washington, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The many-fingered hand of the oil scandal of 1924 reached into the criminal courts for the first time today when Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doheny, were called before the Bar of Justice here for trial on a charge of conspiracy.

The former Interior Secretary and the millionaire oil magnate, personal friends since boyhood, were surrounded by attorneys as they took their places in the court room. The trial will go into all the circumstances of Doheny's $100,000 loan to Fall, while the latter was in the cabinet, and of the part played by Fall in the award of the Elk Hills oil lease to his old time friend.

Owen J. Roberts and former Senator Alcee Pomeroy, special government counsel, were assisted by District Attorney Gordon and an array of others. Frank J. Hogan of Washington is chief of counsel for the Los Angeles oil man, while W. J. Lambert Jr., of Washington heads the lawyers for Fall.

Paul Allen, first juror called, replying to questions by Hogan said he had not read the recently published novel "Revelry," which tells a story of alleged high life in official circles in Washington, nor had he heard reports that prospective jurors have been sitting up nights reading the book.

Selection of a jury then proceeded rapidly, but in each case counsel reserved the right to challenge before opening statements were begun.

Third Husband of Peggy Joyce Reported Married

Chicago, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The Tribune today says that James Stanley Joyce, Chicago lumberman and third husband of Peggy Hopkins Joyce, from whom he was divorced in 1921, was married here Saturday night to Mrs. R. N. Vall of New York.

Efforts were made, the paper said, to keep the marriage a secret, but verification was made by David Joyce, a brother.

The marriage was performed at the home of Joyce's mother, Mrs. William Joyce, David Joyce and his wife acted as best man and matron of honor.

MORE AUTOMOBILES IN THIS STATE THAN ANY COUNTRY IN WORLD EXCEPT UNITED STATES

Chicago, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Illinois with a registration of 1,086,233 passenger cars, owns more automobiles than any country in the world, excepting United States, according to a survey made public today by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

Great Britain is Illinois' closest rival with 853,000 cars. France and Germany combined have 1,063,000 cars.

Automobile owners of Illinois will spend nearly $100,000,000 on gasoline for 1926, the chamber estimates. While Illinois has no gas tax, Standard Oil, Sinclair and other big refiners place the 1926 gasoline consumption at 456,100,000 gallons.

Illinois ranks fifth in car ownership among the states. New York has 1,350,000 passenger cars; California 1,300,000; Pennsylvania 1,200,000 and Ohio 1,184,000. There is an average of one car for every 5.3 people in Illinois and with a per capita ownership of .19 for the country.

BUT ONE BID IS SUBMITTED FOR ST. PAUL TODAY

Chicago, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Minority bond holders of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway were ready to appeal to the supreme court of the United States today as the railroad was about to be sold at auction at Butte, Mont. This was disclosed after formal petition for an appeal had been denied by Federal Judge Evans of the U. S. Court of Appeals.

ONE BID SUBMITTED

Butte, Mont., Nov. 22.—(AP)—After months of litigation which followed its receivership, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway went on the block today for sale to the highest bidder and perhaps the only one.

The reorganization managers, Kuhn, Loeb & Company and the National City Bank of New York, submitted the only bid, $140,000,000 for the great trans-continental line, sale of which still is being fought by minority bond holders. That bid alone had been qualified at midnight by deposits of sufficient securities with the federal court in Chicago.

PLAN NEW COMPANY

Chicago, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway reorganization plan of Kuhn Loeb & Company and the National City Company both of New York, whose representative appeared as bidder at the sale of the road in Butte, Mont., today contemplates a 36 percent reduction in the road's fixed charges and a $70,000,000 assessment against stockholders.

Reorganization under the plan also would mean the passing of the historic line's title, it being the intention of the reorganization managers to have its control pass to a new Delaware corporation, the Chicago, Milwaukee & Pacific Railroad Company.

Present earnings of the system are approximately $20,000,000 and the plan would bring fixed interest charges well within that amount by a net reduction in interest-bearing securities of more than $227,000,000 and a reduction of fixed interest charges on the funded debt.

Speed Found No
of Dixon Visit

Well, Mr. Speed closed his campaign in Dixon Saturday afternoon, but there was an anti-climax. He thought he was all through giving away money, but along in the evening another Telegraph subscriber, J. D. Van Bibber, local chief of police, encountered Mr. Speed and recognized him and, although he didn't happen to have a Telegraph in his hand, he had some words to say that didn't sound very good to Mr. Speed. It seems that Mr. Speed, while driving a Buick car on the Blackhawk Trail about three miles east of Dixon, ran into a Ford roadster, carrying four persons, and both cars were damaged. The driver of the Ford, J. H. Wright of Mt. Morris, preferred the charge, saying that Mr. Speed, whose name in private life is C. W. Tracey, not only ran into him but that he had indulged in a slip or two from the cup that cheers some time before the crash.

Justice Grover W. Gehant held Tracey under $400 bail, which was furnished Sunday and the case continued until Tuesday.

Friends of Mr. Speed say that the charge that he was intoxicated is without foundation.

Sanford Burgess was fined $15 and costs Sunday morning in police court by Justice P. O. Shauls on a charge of being intoxicated. Maynard Fuchs or Oregon, arrested by Officers Jones and Kelly, paid a fine of $10 and costs on a charge of driving an automobile with fictitious license plates, when arraigned before Justice Grover W. Gehant in police court last evening.

Many compliments were heard on the excellent sermon of the Mt. Morris pastor, in the Dixon pulpit, yesterday morning. The Dixon minister was royally treated in the Mt. Morris church, and found a wide awake, enthusiastic congregation, with many signs of progress and vigor, under Brother Nethercutt's leadership.

Wednesday evening's prayer-meeting will be merged with the Annual Sunrise Meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society, seven o'clock, Thursday morning. Olive Palmer and William Rhodes will be the leaders. This service will be limited to forty-five minutes, so as not to interfere with the City Union Service, in the Presbyterian Church, the Rev. W. W. Marshall preaching.

Ronald Reagan, Roy Flinnigam, and John Padgett will be the representatives of the Bible School, in the Annual Y. M. C. A. Older Boys' Conference, Moline, this week end.

An invitation has been received from the Walnut Christian Church, to attend the dedicatory services there, next Sunday, Dr. H. H. Peters of Blounting in charge. Pastor Harry B. Wheaton has led the congregation in extensive improvements on the former building. Weather permitting, a delegation from Dixon will attend in the afternoon.

CHURCH OF GOD

The series of meetings being held at the chapel of the Church of God are well attended and proving to be of much interest.

Saturday evening the subject "The Spirit Birth" brought out many good thoughts. The lesson being taken from the conversation between Jesus and Nicodemus, John 3:3, "Jesus answered and said unto him, 'Verily, verily, I say unto you except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God,' and also in verse 5, 'Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of God.' In the 6th chapter of Romans we find what Paul says in regard to being born of water. 'Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life.' Before there can be a birth there must be a baptism. We are begotten by the Gospel, in 1 Cor. 4, 15. 'For though ye have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet have ye not many fathers; for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the gospel.' When we go through the likeness of death through baptism, we arise to walk a new life, being dead to the old life and sin, being made a new creature, the only way we can serve Jesus. Gal. 6, 15. 'For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision, but a new creature.' After we have heard and obeyed the Word of God through baptism, being begotten, there must come a growth of the Spirit within us, we must overcome the carnal nature, day. Gal. 5, 16, 24. 'This I say, walk in the Spirit and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh. And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts. So word of God is the Spirit working within us, and is life for us. We become new creatures, if we overcome the carnal nature as much as we can. Romans 8:10-13. 'And if Christ be in you the body is dead because of sin; but the Spirit is life because of righteousness. For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live.'

By feeding on spiritual food we will nourish our spiritual life and grow stronger. Then will come the birth by spirit, which we must have to enter the kingdom of God. This will come at the Resurrection morning when after this natural body has been sown and at the power of God will be raised a spiritual body as Jesus was. He was a natural mortal man, died and was buried and then God raised him a spiritual immortal being. And that promise is given to us. Ps. 17:15, 'As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness.'

Sunday morning's sermon on the Triumphal entry was very interesting, bringing out the thought that the time of Jesus entering Jerusalem before his crucifixion and clearing out and purifying the temple, is a picture in a small way, of his second coming as King of the Earth, taking his throne in Jerusalem and then cleansing and purifying the whole earth.

The evening subject on the dream of King Nebuchadnezzar, explained the meaning of this dream. The image of gold, silver, brass, iron and clay, representing the different kingdoms on the earth. Gold, reign of Nebuchadnezzar, silver the reign of King Darius the Persian, the brass Alexander the Great, after which came the iron, or the Roman ruler. This image represented the first four empires on the earth, each in their time ruling the whole earth. Then comes the feet of the image of iron and clay a mixture, which is a picture of the kingdoms of today, not just one over all, but many different kingdoms or governments throughout the earth, not mixing the same as iron and clay will not mix. Then in the dream the king saw a stone, made without hands, cut out of the mountain, which fell swiftly on the feet of the image and ground the whole thing to powder and the winds came and blew it away and there was no trace left but the stone, which was small, remained and grew, until it became a mountain and filled the whole earth. Dan. 2:35.

This stone is Jesus, not made by mortal power but by God, as prophesied by Isaiah 28:16. He shall come and destroy all earthly kingdoms, and his kingdom will grow and cover the whole earth. Dan. 2:44 'And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever.' Also in Dan. 7:13-14. 'I saw in the night, visions, and behold, one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations and languages should serve him; his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed.'

Services will continue through the week over the following Sunday. This evening the subject will be, 'A Hell, What? Where?'

Tuesday evening sermon, 'Where are the Dead?'

Everyone given a cordial welcome.

Cupid Trots a Fast Heat

That funny little fellow, Cupid, worker of woes and wonders, took only two months flat to step off the distance between the meeting and marriage of Dorothy Mackall, English screen star and former Pollux girl, and Lothar Mendes, German movie director. He dropped all impedimenta, even his symbolic bow and arrows, got off to a fast start soon after Mendes and Dorothy were brought together by their work and didn't skip a stride until the wedding in New York two days after Mendes proposed. If haste prevented Cupid from making a perfectly handsome match these pictures of the couple don't show it.

LEARN TO LAUGH—

Learn to laugh, a good laugh is better than medicine.
Learn how to tell a story; a good story, well told, is as welcome as sunshine in a sick room.
Learn to keep your troubles to yourself; the world is too busy to heed your ills and sorrows.
Learn to stop grumbling. If you cannot see any good in the world, keep the bad to yourself.

Learn to meet your friends with a smile; a good humored man or woman is always welcome, but the ill-tempered is not wanted anywhere.

You will pass through this world but once. Any good thing, therefore, that you can do, or any kindness that you can show to any human being, you had better do it now.

The strongest and bravest men are as a rule, the mildest and gentlest. Indeed, courtesy is often a sign of strength, because it implies and involves a certain self-repression, which is reserve strength.—Cincinnati Telephone Bulletin.

W. C. T. U. Meeting Held Friday

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union held an all day meeting, Friday Nov. 19th with Mrs. George Carpenter, 1315 West Third St. It was under the supervision of the hostess, who is Supt. of the Dept. of Soldiers and Sailors. Materials that had been solicited were brought and rugs sewed to be sent to the soldier boys for rug-making. The regular business session was called by the President, Mrs. Hobbs, during the afternoon opening with spirited singing from the new song books, edited by Anna Gordon. The devotional period was led by Mrs. Belle Morris. Reports by officers and superintendents followed. Two hundred blotters had been purchased and given to the pupils of the 7th and 8th grades of our schools, through the Department of Scientific Temperance Instruction with this reading—Pure Air—Pure air for Dogs. Pure air for children. At a dog show held in a large city this was posted in conspicuous places.

Smoking not allowed.

It hurts the Dogs.

If tobacco smoke is bad for dogs, is it not equally bad for boys and girls? Miss Janette Dewey, Co. Treas., who was a delegate to the State Convention at Ottawa gave a very inspiring report of that great meeting and brought an award to a member of the Dixon union, Mrs. Andrew Huggins, for having secured ten new members during the year. The chief topic at the convention was Law Enforcement.

The program as planned for the afternoon was postponed until the next month and it was decided that during the winter season the hour of meeting shall be two o'clock.

Mrs. Austin George Happily Surprised

Mrs. Austin George of 519 Crawford avenue was surprised on Friday afternoon when thirty-two members of the American Legion Auxiliary gained admittance to her home. Mrs. George was at the time in the home of Mrs. Schmucker, helping to finish some work for the boys, when she was sent for, on the pretense that she had company from out-of-town. She surely was surprised when she saw "the company."

A happy afternoon was spent, a musical program being a feature. Mrs. A. D. George gave a most enjoyable double number, and Miss Frances Schmucker also gave a most

The WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

Well, as far as some of us are concerned, whatever criminal conspiracy Almee McPherson has or has not entered into, she has set one gleaming jewel in her crown with the public discovery that she wears pretty colored silk lingerie. It seems rather certain that the evangelist bought about $2500 worth of silk undies and negligees a few days before her strange disappearance.

The apricot or jade green negligee of Almee may not seem a weighty matter to most folks. But it is encouraging to the race to find a great woman leader, as Almee undoubtedly is, to be frivolous, beauty-loving piece of femininity as well, a woman who does not preach red flannels and neat-but-not-gaudy heavies, but who wears real lace tucks, smoking, and hemstitched silk confections.

The European manner of eating is coming to America, we learn. Those of us who in our wanderings on the continent across the foam, marveled at the socially-endorsed custom of holding the knife in the right hand, keeping the fork in the left, and with the knife piling food upon the down-turned fork tines, then conveyed to the mouth, will see this custom on home shores.

Those who have tried it say that this method beats ours all hollow. There is no shifting of fork from left to right hand, as we do, after cutting our meat. Knives are commonly used abroad for salad, fish, fruits, and both knife and fork are served with desserts.

Well, it'll take training at first, but no doubt when we're used to it, we'll wonder why we ever ate any other way!

"The woman with long hair was too often just hair, a great mop she was proud of. And it spoiled the line of her head and attracted attention from her face. One thought of her as luxuriant hair instead of a woman."

I don't know just where I copped the above pungent phrases, but I, who was once just hair, but who now revel in the head reaper, long to shout it at every Just Hair I meet. They are so piously virtuous about it today, these Just Hair, so superior to the common herd—I can talk because I was one once, too—and for the most part they look like the old Ned.

Since I'm in the quote-stealing business today, I would feign quote

Margaret Cullin Banning on the deserted wife. She says:

"The first thing the neglected wife must realize is that no one completely possesses anyone else."
If more wives and husbands, too, would learn this, the so-called tragedies of marriage would not be that when they were seen as only to be expected occurrences.

Emerson also says, "Two must be very two before they can be very one!"

Uncle Sam has spoken. His gals shall and must and will wear stockings which reach 8 inches above the knees. He has spoken through the U. S. Bureau of Standards. That worthy body investigated the length of 14,000 pairs of ladies' hosiery before issuing its ultimatum length of 27.5 inches in all stockings from heel to top, and figuring that this stocking would come 8 inches above the knees of a woman 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighing 130 pounds.

There is no reason to believe that principles of modesty or so-called morality actuate the bureau in its august decision. This bureau merely works to see that manufacturers give consumers a fair deal. They probably decided that for purposes of comfort, warmth, utility, a stocking of this length would give the greatest good to the greatest number. And no law will prevent the flapper from rolling hers to just the same—she'll have 8 inches to wad, that's all.

The double standard of morals has been discussed throughout the decades. The double standard of salaries has received its share of attention, too. Now it is called to our notice that there is a double standard of prices for men and women. It is said that women are charged about 15 per cent more than men on goods of identical quality, because women abuse the charge account privilege by not paying the bills promptly, by making exchanges and by kicking about the merchandise. Store managers explain that they can sell more cheaply to men because men do not abuse "the return privilege."

Grr-r-r-r! If that doesn't look in print the way a bear or a tiger or a dinosaur growls, imagine it to suit yourself. Anyway, growl I will! It was only this morning that my kid brother beamed sheepishly at me over the morning coffee and said, "Say, Al, are you going to be very busy lunch time?" Knowing what this introduction ever means, I was cautious, but could think of no palpitating business. "Then," said kid brother, "would you mind stopping in at Blank's and taking back those blue shirts? I don't like the collars on them—you'll be stopping in anyway, for some cold cream or something."

Sugar Grove Mothers' Club

The Sugar Grove Mothers' club held a picnic dinner Friday noon, at the school house, at which forty guests and the pupils and teacher were present. The guests included the families of the school district and Prof. Lancaster of the Dixon high school. Following the dinner a program was enjoyed. An interesting talk on "Ideals" given by Prof. Lancaster was followed by recitations and songs by the pupils, under the direction of Miss Gibson, the teacher.

All mothers and those interested in any way in the school are especially invited to attend the next meeting of the club to be held Friday, Dec. 10 at 3 p. m. at the school house.

HAS BEEN A GUEST AT THE BREED HOME—

Mrs. Hattie B. Hall of Norwich, N. Y., has been a guest for the past four days at the home of her cousins in Dixon, the Misses Doris and Harriet Breed and Loreata Bolt. Mrs. Hall left today for New York. She was accompanied as far as Chicago by Miss Bolt who will visit in the city until Wednesday.

WERE MARRIED SATURDAY, NOV. 6th—

The marriage of Miss Grace Dettman, teacher of the Talbott school in Jordan township, and Earl Maxwell, was solemnized on Saturday, Nov. 6. The couple are residing at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Maxwell.

HAS BEEN GUEST OF SISTER IN ROCKFORD—

Mrs. M. R. Forsyth returned last evening from Rockford where she has been a guest for the past week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Chapman. Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Forsyth are sisters.

L. O. O. M. MEETS WEDNESDAY EVENING—

The L. O. O. M. will meet Wednesday evening in Moose hall.

WHEN FRIENDS DROP IN DURING THE EVENING TRY OUT THESE NEW DRINKS—

BY SISTER MARY
When friends drop in for a game of bridge or a visit before the fire in the evening, the hostess is sometimes puzzled as to just what "cup" to serve to produce that atmosphere of cheer and welcome.

Men seldom care for tea, the guests may be some of those persons who shun coffee in the evening on the theory that it keeps them awake half the night and hot chocolate or cocoa may seem too rich and heavy for an evening beverage for grown-ups.

But did you ever consider the merits of hot fruit drinks such as hot lemonade, hot grape juice, punch and hot mulled cider. Any of these drinks served with a crisp salted cracker or not too sweet cookie will prove popular. When you offer your guest a drink of hot lemonade you are giving him a drink of health. Lemon juice contains the "anti" vitamins to a marked degree and while it seems acid, is really alkaline in its effects in the body.

Serve in Mugs

Of course these hot cups can't be served in glasses, but a trip through the "house furnishings" of a large department store will reveal attractive mugs at a moderate price worthy of investment. The novelty of the whole idea will "take" delightfully.

To make hot lemonade, allow half a lemon for each cup of water and 1 to 2 tablespoons sugar for each half lemon. Measure water, add sugar and bring to the boiling point. Pour over lemon juice strained into a big pitcher. Slices of lemon can be served in the lemonade if preferred. And a stick of cinnamon or a few whole cloves can be steeped with the sugar and water to change the flavor.

Hot mulled cider is particularly pleasing just at this time of year. It would be delightful to serve with turkey sandwiches on Thanksgiving evening.

Hot Mulled Cider

Two quarts sweet cider, 11-2 cups brown sugar, 6 inch piece stick cinnamon, 1 teaspoon whole cloves, 1 teaspoon whole allspice, 1-4 teaspoon salt.

Put the spices in a cheesecloth bag

if you don't want to stain the beverage. Put sugar, cider and spices into a smooth sauce pan and bring slowly to the boiling point. Do not let boil, but simmer for ten minutes. Serve in mugs.

Hot Grape-Juice Punch

Three pints grape juice, 1 pint water, 3 lemons, 4 oranges, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoon whole cloves, 1 inch stick cinnamon.

Cut the rind of two lemons into thin slices, squeezing out juice. Put lemon rind, sugar, spices and water into a smooth kettle and bring slowly to the boiling point. Simmer over a low fire for ten minutes. Add grape juice, lemon juice and orange juice and reheat but do not boil. Strain into a big pitcher and serve.

These drinks are all delicious and very much worth while. They will not tax your digestion nor stimulate your nervous systems. Try one at your next party with sandwiches or whatever you will and see how much it will be enjoyed.

Thres Perish in Fire in Los Angeles Today

Los Angeles, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Three persons perished, several were injured and eight women were saved from death by firemen, when a blaze of undetermined origin gutted a four-story apartment house in the downtown district here today.

Wheeler Against Govt. Manufacture of Whiskey

Washington, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The proposal of Assistant Secretary Andrews, government chief prohibition enforcer, for immediate resumption of the manufacture of medicinal whiskey, has failed to receive the approval for the present at least, of the Anti-Saloon League.

General Andrews calls for creation of machinery by congress to take over the existing supply of 15,000,000 gallons of medicinal whiskey and begin the manufacture of more to replenish this diminishing stock.

The position of the Anti-Saloon League, as announced by its general counsel, Wayne B. Wheeler, is that immediate manufacture of whiskey is not necessary and that it will be possible to import sufficient whiskey from abroad if needed to meet medicinal demands.

THE SEVENTIETH CONGRESS.

It appears that republicans will organize both houses of the seventieth congress. The party has a substantial majority in the house of representatives. In the senate the republicans have 47 votes and the vice president's vote in event of a tie. Democrats have 47 and there is 1 farmer-labor vote.

If the democrats were to obtain control of the senate they would have needed to have taken from the republicans nine seats. Anybody could count three or four, but only the most optimistic counting could give them the necessary nine. The three or four that the minority party were practically sure to gain were in the border states which are more often represented by two democrats than by a divided delegations. Included in these states were Oklahoma, Arizona, Nevada, Kentucky, Missouri and Maryland. Republican senators were elected in these commonwealths in the Harding landslide. Even in a normal republican presidential success, they would be doubtful territory.

Gains in New York and Massachusetts may be considered greater democratic victories.

Although it is recognized that certain western insurgents line up occasionally with the democrats against the administration, it is not likely that they will do so in the matter of organization of the senate. Committee chairmanships and committee control are involved in the process of organization, and even insurgents are not likely to be so shortsighted as to throw the power to the democrats. They have too much at stake themselves, and insurgents are not noted for their great unselfishness.

Senator Borah is chairman of the important committee on foreign affairs. Senator Norris is in line for chairmanship of the judiciary committee. Senator Couzens is chairman of the committee on civil service. Senator Johnson of California is chairman of the committee on immigration, an important position for his state. Senator Norbeck of South Dakota is chairman of the committee on pensions.

All of these places are at stake, and it certainly would be a shortsighted policy for these senators to trade their support to the democrats even to hold their own places. Such poultry invariably comes home to roost.

By this reasoning it appears that the republicans will continue to hold the chairmanships and a majority of all the committees of the senate.

From the standpoint of the administration, the close margin may not be as much a menace as some fear. The fact is that this administration is not promoting much legislation. Its tax reduction program went through the last session. With a republican in the presidency and a safe majority in the house, it is a certainty that there will be no tariff tinkering by the next congress.

This administration is engaged more in holding the boat level than it is in hunting for rough seas to plow. This the president is in position to do.

The new congress does not convene in regular session until December, 1927. President Coolidge is not inclined to call extra sessions, so only in case of an emergency is it likely to convene before that date.

Principal importance of this election was its influence upon the presidential campaign of 1928. It is not an uncommon thing for the minority party or the party opposed to the administration to make gains in what is known as the "off year." In fact it is the rule that such gains are made. Often these gains are so great as to overturn one or both houses of congress. That the republicans have held control of organizations of both houses is a substantial victory.

AT THE END OF THE ROAD.

Clemenceau of France who, as "The Tiger," was the thunderous voice of France during those red years between 1914 and '18, had a birthday a few days ago. The tiger was 85.

He spent his birthday in work, toiling with a translator over the American edition of his new book, "Civilization." And after hours of this, he walked in the garden which his own old hands dug and planted—smelling of his roses, eager at a late violet and pansy, down through his garden to the sea, watching the breakers foam and beat on a white sand stretch.

Then "The Tiger" went to market for his supper. Children hung on his arms and smiled at him as he bargained with one old fisherwoman after another for the plumpest lobster, the juiciest sole.

Once the thunder of all Europe. Now the simplest among the simple. Clemenceau, once with the power of thunder in his voice, is supremely happy.

"It is only what we all want at the end of the road," he says—"quiet and peace."

No matter what power, what wealth, what success they achieve, most men ask for little else at the end of the road but a house and garden, chickens, a shady walk, a library, and a little work.

Federal men uncovered a mail-order liquor house in New York. That's one less catalog the farmer will have to bother with.

We are wondering if King Ferdinand knows how to operate a carpet sweeper.

As a man thinks so is he. As he talks so was he.

THE TINYMIES

BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.)

The limb their swing was on, you see, was sprouting from an apple tree, and when they started swinging, apples showered from all around. It came as such a great surprise, the Tinymies didn't realize just what it was that filled the air, and bobbed upon the ground.

Then Scouty hollered, "Hey, look out!" And all the rest began to shout. And in a moment all the them were running here and there. They knew 'twas best to run away. It simply wasn't safe to stay. They might be hit by apples that were falling through the air.

And then the monstrous swish stopped still, and put an end to all the thrill. It ceased to shake the tree, so shortly, no more apples fell. The Tinymies gazed at the ground, and they were pleased at what they found. A lot of big red apples. Scouty shouted, "This is swell."

Said he, "I surely hope they're sweet, 'cause if they are they're good to eat, and we can gather up a lot and have a dandy meal." He then chose one that looked all right, and tried his best to take a bite, but Scouty was too small to even nibble through the peel.

"Oh, that's a shame," woe Ukey said, "I surely thought that we'd be fed, but how are we to eat when all our teeth are mighty weak?" "Ho, ho! that's easy," Copy cried. "There's nothing gained if nothing's tried. I have a plan to solve it all, if you'll just let me speak."

So Copy then suggested quick, a plan that he thought very slick. Said he, "We'll take the farmer's saw and saw the fruit in two." "That's great," they told him with a smile, "the saw'll cut by the old wood pile. If you'll just run and get it, that's exactly what we'll do."

SAINT and SINNER

BY ANNE AUSTIN

A spasm of fear, not only of the automatic, but of the man he was about to betray, twitched the ill-assorted, greasy features of Pete's face. "How do you expect a guy to think with a gun fable to go off in his stomach any minute?"

Bob took his finger off the trigger and removed it a careful inch from contact with the frayed old red sweater. "Now, spill it! You've wasted time enough. Expecting your loss to arrive any minute to help you out of a tight fix, eh?"

"Now," growled Pete, "He ain't showin' his mug around this dump. Got too much sense; might get cocker-burns in his golf pants!" he grinned evilly, casting a blinking glance around the desolate, weed-grown vacant lots that edged the road. "Alex Cluny gimme this job, and Lola's workin' for him too. Now laff that off! He's your cousin, ain't he?"

"Alexander Cluny?" Bob Hathaway ejaculated, the gun almost dropping from his suddenly relaxed hand. "Pete, if you're lying I'll string you up to that oak tree there by your toes."

Cherry tore open the door of the car and sprang to Bob's side. "It's the truth, Bob. I've suspected it all along. Say, Pete, how did Lola get in on this party?" she demanded flippantly.

"She was sore on you, see?" he spoke to Cherry. "Jealous. She was Chris Wiley's sweetie before he took up with you an' give her the air, an' she was sore on you, see?"

"Cherry tore open the door of the car and sprang to Bob's side. 'It's the truth, Bob. I've suspected it all along. Say, Pete, how did Lola get in on this party?' she demanded flippantly."

suddenly, "an' he let it out to Lola cow sore him an' the rest of the guys was about the old guy's gettin' engaged to Ch— Miss Lane. He had the hunch to put a detective on Miss Lane's trail, so's he could pick up a lot of dirt to pop under the old guy's nose."

"But Lola, she was wise! She told him it was a bum steer, an' that he'd better give me the job, 'cause a real detective might squeal later an' make it hot for him, seein' as how he's messin' around in politics. An' then she eased out her own scheme, to write them poison pen letters as you call 'em, to Miss Lane, an' scare the liver outa her."

"I guess Alex Cluny ain't none too crazy about you Mr. Hathaway, 'cause it was his idea to have her write them letters in your office, on your paper, so's they could be traced to you in case Miss Lane was smart enough to trace 'em at all. Lola was to swear you dictated 'em to her an' she had to write 'em or lose her job."

"I see!" Bob spoke through clenched teeth.

"The old snake in the grass!" Cherry hissed like a character in a melodrama.

"Alex Cluny gimme twenty bucks a day for my work, an' Lola pulled down a grand for writin' them letters, less'n she's lyin' to me, an' it was more. Dirt cheap for a thousand, I says."

"All right, Pete. I'm taking you to town with me, and we'll call on my esteemed cousin, Mr. Alexander Cluny."

"No, sir, not me! I ain't ready to commit suicide!" Pete Gonzales ducked as though to run away. "Come back here, Pete, or I'll shoot your feet off! Cherry, you'll have to drive, Faith. I'm sorry but you'll have to sit in the little seat that pulls out in the rear. And Pete, you will sit between Miss Lane and me, and if you make a false move, I'll shoot."

POSTAL WORKERS AS PUBLIC HELP DURING HOLIDAYS

Compliance With Dept. Suggestions Would Help Service

A special bulletin issued by the Post Office Department to guide patrons of the U. S. mails has just been received at the Dixon office. It urges everyone to "shop now and mail early for early delivery," and adds that no deliveries of mail will be made on Christmas Day after 12 o'clock noon.

The post offices will make every effort to handle the Christmas mails without congestion and delay, but owing to the enormous volume this can be done only with the co-operation of the public. Compliance with the following suggestions will greatly aid the postal employees and insure the prompt handling of mail:

Wrapping and Packing
All parcels must be securely wrapped or packed. Use strong paper and heavy twine.

Special Packing
Umbrellas, canes, golf sticks, should be reinforced their full length by strong strips of wood tightly wrapped and tied to withstand transportation. Hats: Packed in strong corrugated or fiber boxes. Ordinary pasteboard hat boxes must be crated. Ladies' hats and stiff hats easily damaged should be marked "FRAGILE."

Shoes: Pack in strong boxes, preferably corrugated cardboard. Wrap with strong paper securely tied with heavy twine.

Cut flowers: Place in strong suitable boxes of wood, tin, or heavy corrugated cardboard. Wrap with tissue to retain moisture.

Candies: Inclose in strong outside boxes or containers.

Drawings, paintings, unmounted

Postage
Postage must be fully prepaid on all mail. Affix the required amount of postage in the upper right corner. Full information concerning postage rates can be obtained at the post-office or stamp windows.

Limit of Weight and Size
No parcel may be more than 84 inches in length and girth combined.

Addresses
Addresses should be complete, with house number and name of street, post-office box or rural-route number, and typed or plainly written in ink. A return card should be placed in the upper left corner of every piece of mail. If a tag is used, the address and return card should also be written on the wrapper for use if tag is lost, and a copy of the address should be inclosed inside the parcel.

Matter Not Mailable
Written matter in the nature of personal correspondence can not be inclosed in parcels.

Communications attached to parcels: A letter placed in an envelope, addressed to the parcel, may be attached to the parcel, but it must be inclosed in a separate envelope.

Parcels for Foreign Countries
Parcels of mailable merchandise may be sent (subject to certain limitations and conditions) by international parcel post to all foreign countries except Arabia, Spanish Guinea, and Tristan da Cunha. Foreign parcel-post packages should be mailed at the main office or large classified stations.

Owing to the long sea travel involved in most instances and customs inspection abroad foreign parcels should be most carefully packed and mailed in November.

Information
For further information on any of the above subjects or concerning any other postal matter, inquire at the proper window—stamp, parcel post, money order, registry, etc.—or see the postmaster or one of his assistants.

Ant hills are established at the base of certain trees in China and Italy, to protect the trees from injurious insects.

Certain natives of Australia put hobnails in the skin of the soles of their feet.

Guards Your Children's Teeth
You gladly reward the children when they clean their teeth, regularly.

Here's a way to get them to do it three times a day—after every meal!

Reward them with WRIGLEY'S chewing sweet, and let the very reward itself actually do the work!

WRIGLEY'S makes strong healthy teeth, removes particles of food from teeth crevices, and aids digestion. So it is a wonderful help to health.

It clears the breath of odors and thus is an aid to refinement.

3 handy packs for 5¢

Most cordially yours

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

BY AHERNS

WHEN YOU RAID THE OWL'S CLUB, JUST TAKE ME ALONG INSTEAD OF THOSE TWO SCARECROWS YOU HAVE IN POLICE UNIFORMS!—HM-M. ALL I NEED IS A BROOM, AND I'LL HAVE THE WHOLE OWL'S CLUB DOING THE LOCK-STEP TO YOUR OFFICE!

HAR-RR-UMF!—PLEASE TO REMEMBER MADAM, YOUR PLACE IS THAT OF A HOUSEWIFE, NOT MEDDLING IN MY OFFICIAL DUTIES!—EVEN THOUGH YOU ARE THE WIFE OF A CIVIC EXECUTIVE, YOU ARE NOT VESTED WITH ANY LEGAL AUTHORITY!—AS A JUSTICE, I HAVE FULL SWAY, THAT IS, AH—EXCEPT AT HOME!

SPEAK UP, MAJOR!

For delivery locally and in the first, second and third zones, 70 pounds is the maximum weight; in all other zones, 50 pounds.

Where to Mail Parcels
Uninsured parcels 8 ounces or less in weight may be mailed in street letter or package boxes, at all classified stations and branches, and at such numbered stations as are designated to receive parcels. Parcels weighing over 8 ounces can not be mailed in street boxes, but must be taken to the main post office or classified station or branch. Parcels containing meat, food products, cut flowers, or other perishable matter should be mailed only at the main post office or one of the large classified stations.

When to Mail Cards and Parcels
Christmas gifts and cards addressed to points within one day's travel should be mailed not later than December 20; within two days' travel, not later than December 18; within three days' travel, not later than December 16; for more distant points, not later than December 14. Parcels and cards for local delivery should be mailed not later than December 22.

Christmas Cards
The early mailing of Christmas cards is just as important as parcels. Millions of these cards, separate and in envelopes, are mailed each Christmas. Consequently, great congestion and delay occurs in large post offices when they are all mailed within a day or two of Christmas. Therefore if you want your Christmas greetings to reach your relatives and friends on or before Christmas Day, follow the instructions in the preceding paragraph relative to mailing early and be certain of delivery before Christmas.

Perishable Matter
Articles likely to spoil within the time reasonably required for transportation and delivery will not be accepted for mailing. Wrap or pack carefully, according to contents, and plainly mark all such parcels "Perishable." Use special-delivery stamps to expedite delivery.

Addresses
Addresses should be complete, with house number and name of street, post-office box or rural-route number, and typed or plainly written in ink. A return card should be placed in the upper left corner of every piece of mail. If a tag is used, the address and return card should also be written on the wrapper for use if tag is lost, and a copy of the address should be inclosed inside the parcel.

ABOUT 300 RABBITS FELL BEFORE GUNS OF ELKS' HUNTERS

Therefore There Will Be Plenty of Bunnies for Feed

Between two and three hundred cotton tails who were exposed to the chill blasts of the early arrival of winter fell before the guns in the Elks annual rabbit hunt over the week end and will be in readiness for the fry which will be held at the club house Tuesday evening at 8:30. The bags of both teams were fairly evenly matched with Merriman's side having a shade the best of the opponents. The near zero conditions which prevailed early yesterday morning materially lessened the number of hunters and in some instances hunters are waiting until today to carry on their activities.

All of the rabbits were delivered to the Netz & Company garage where two experts speedily stripped them of the coats and prepared them for the frying pan, placing them in cold storage until the chefs have the grease hot tomorrow afternoon. Chicken hawks, owls, crows, pigeons and pests of more than one kind were brought down and checked in by the hunters. The rabbits will be prepared and served at a dinner Tuesday evening at 8:30 for the membership of the lodge. Any who did not participate in the hunt are requested to call 190 and make their reservation between 8 and 12 o'clock Tuesday in order that the house committee may have some idea of the number to provide for. Any member of the lodge will be entitled to attend the supper and assist in disposing of the trophies of the most successful hunt. There will be plenty of rabbit and other good things which will be prepared to make out a full dinner.

BIG TEN TITLE UNCERTAIN AS RESULT GAMES

Poor Arrangement of the Schedule Shown in Final Standing

Chicago, Nov. 22—(AP)—The Western Conference curtain has descended again with two teams, Northwestern and Michigan, reigning as undefeated eleven, but with the mythical championship in reality undecided.

This season's battles demonstrated that the Big Ten schedule was poorly arranged for the deciding of a championship. While theoretically the Purple and Wolverine divided honors, in reality each was the champion of one half of the conference.

Each team won five conference battles against four Big Ten teams, but there was no common point of contact for purposes of comparison as each played a different set of opponents.

Northwestern defeated Indiana twice and Purdue, Chicago and Iowa once each, while Michigan counted a double victory over Minnesota and single wins over Illinois, Wisconsin and Ohio State.

The Wolverines admittedly played the stronger teams but Northwestern won by consistently larger scores. The Evanston players rolled up the largest point score and also held their opponents to the lowest tally. Michigan barely staved off defeat twice. That's as far as comparative records go except that each team lost one non-conference game, Michigan falling before Navy and Northwestern succumbing to Notre Dame. It might be mentioned however that Rockne's men found their toughest opponent in the Purple which held the Indians to the closest score of their schedule, 6 to 0.

There is one other point of comparison if the football pages are turned back a year for the scumming of Northwestern's 8-2 defeat of Michigan last season. Both Northwestern and Michigan suffered one defeat in the 1925 race.

CHAMPIONSHIP AWARDED YOST- MEN ON SHOWING

Dickinson Rating System Gives Honors to Michigan

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 22—(AP)—The Western Conference football championship is awarded to Michigan under the Dickinson rating system, in the tabulation issued today by Prof. F. C. Dickinson of the University of Illinois, the author.

"Just because a team has completed its schedule undefeated," said Prof. Dickinson, "it is not entitled to a Big Ten championship. Any Big Ten school that omits Ohio, Illinois, Michigan and Minnesota from its schedule can scarcely lay claim to the conference title merely on the ground of being undefeated."

The Dickinson system, introduced last year, eliminates all ties and attempts to recognize the teams that play hard schedules. Victories over teams in the upper half of the table count for more than victories over teams in the lower five.

Played Hard Schedule.
"Michigan played a terrific schedule this fall," said Prof. Dickinson. "It is doubtful if any team in the country had the opposition which the Wolverines confronted. Michigan's opponents won ten games."

"I am glad that football is on the up grade at Evanston and I hope that the time will come soon when Northwestern will take her turn regularly in winning the Big Ten title. I cannot rate Northwestern on a par with the Wolverines this year."

The Rissman Big Ten trophy awarded each year on the basis of the Dickinson rating, will be presented to the Michigan eleven Nov. 29 at its football banquet.

The Dickinson rating for 1926 follows:

Team	Won	Lost	Rating
Michigan	5	0	24.00
Northwestern	5	0	22.00
Purdue	2	1	19.38
Ohio State	3	1	18.75
Minnesota	3	2	17.50
Wisconsin	3	2	17.08
Illinois	2	2	15.00
Indiana	0	4	10.00
Iowa	0	5	10.00
Chicago	0	5	10.00

GRID WARRIORS OF HIGH SCHOOL GUESTS TONIGHT

Will Be Guests of Dix- on Gyro at a Din- ner This Eve.

Members of the light and heavy-weight football squads and Coaches Bowers and McMasters, will throw aside all training rules for an hour at least this evening and the athletes will take on a wonderful dinner. The football squads and coaches are the guests of the Dixon Gyro club this evening at a roast turkey dinner which will be served in the guild rooms at St. Luke's church. The national bird with all of the array of side dishes will be set before the grid stars.

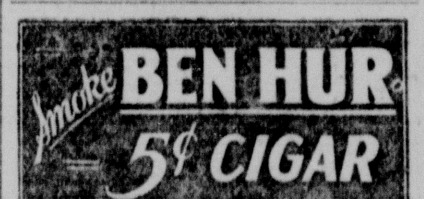

A cleverly arranged program has been framed to follow the festivities. Toastmaster Larry Tibbits will call upon the coaches who will introduce their respective squads after which the guests will be formally welcomed by L. E. DeCamp, president elect of the Gyro club. Captain Harry Weinman will make the response as representing the gridgers. J. W. Point Military academy team will be heard after which the speaker of the evening, Jerome J. "Duke" Danne, line coach of Northwestern university, will deliver the principal address of the evening.

Minnesota's Full Back is Best Ground Gainer

Chicago, Nov. 22—(AP)—An average gain of five and a fifth yards, every time he took the pike in this season, gives to Herb Joesting, Minnesota's full back, the reputation of being one of the greatest back field men the Western Conference has ever seen. Minus his football shoes Joesting is six feet two inches tall and weighs 192 pounds. Invariably when tackled he dragged one or more men a yard or so before being downed. He is 22 years of age.

During the season just ended he gained a total of 962 yards, just 65 yards behind Red Grange who set a Big Ten record of 1017 yards in 1924. Joesting led Western Conference players in scoring this year with 13 touchdowns for a total of 78 points.

COACHES OF BIG TEN DIVIDED ON VALUE OF RULES

Penalty on Incompleted Pass and Abolition of Shift Talked

Chicago, Nov. 22—(AP)—A majority of the Western Conference coaches today expressed vigorous dissent with the new football rule in effect this year inflicting five yard penalties for successive incompleted forward passes after the first try.

A season's experience with the restriction has convinced most of them, they say, that it had failed to achieve the rules committee's object of cutting down indiscriminate passes.

The suggestion that the shift play be abolished however, found opinion about evenly divided and one coach, Wilce of Ohio is a vigorous advocate of the abolishment of the point kick after touchdown. Ohio lost its chance for a tie with Michigan this year through a one point defeat but won from Illinois to take second place by the same one point.

Two Support Rule
Coaches Staag of Chicago, a member of the rules committee, and Wilce, are the only supporters of the new forward pass penalty rule.

Coach Wilce hopes to see the point kick after touchdown abolished "as a matter of natural evolution," he said. "The new forward pass penalty is an encumbrance on the game," said Coach Zupke of Illinois, and many of the Big Ten coaches concur. "It is utterly useless. As for the shift the new restrictions have not worked out successfully."

Coaches Yost of Michigan and Spears of Minnesota, agree with Zupke that the pass penalty is useless, but they differ on the shift. Yost said he believed most of the leading teams had abandoned the shift play. Spears Premier Fleming of New Brunswick, said Minnesota had used the shift all season with only four penalties.

Would Cut Penalties
Coach Thistlethwaite of Northwestern agreed that the pass penalty rule should be abolished and Coach Ingwersen of Iowa added that he believed all restrictions on the aerial game should be ended. Both Ingwersen and Thistlethwaite said they felt that shift penalties should be more severe.

The penalty for successive forward pass attempts made no great difference in the general playing of teams this fall, said the Hoosier coaches. Page of Indiana and Phelan of Purdue.

Phelan declared he was opposed to constant tinkering with the rules and said that if changes were necessary the new rule should be tentative.

RE-DISCOVERING ILLINOIS

By LESTER B. CROSBY

Illinois Chamber of Commerce

When a little group of pioneers who had settled in Warren county met in 1831 to select the site for the county seat they set about the matter in scientific fashion. They took an inventory of the future possibilities and development of the country.

It was agreed that this township, ultimately, might support eight or ten families; that another one might have twelve or fourteen and another one not so many. When that was done they chose the spot that they thought would be the "center of population" and laid out the county seat. They called it Monmouth. The first selection was Kosciusko but this was abandoned on protest that few persons would ever learn how to spell it. Lots sold from $4 to $12 each.

That eight or fourteen families to a township, envisioned by the hardy pioneers, has grown mightily. Today there are approximately 4,000 farm families and about 2,300 city families in the county—and Warren county is one of Illinois' smaller counties. Farm crops in the county average in annual value about $6,000,000; livestock about $4,630,000.

It may be information to you to know that Warren county has more hogs, per farm, than any other county in the state. The average is 62.3 hogs to the farm. Mercer county comes next with 59.4; Stark third with 54 and Henderson county fourth with 49.1. The counties coming nearest to zero in hogs are Marion with 4.3 hogs per farm; Franklin, 4.5; Washington, 4.7 and Williamson, 4.9. But that is disagreeing.

The old fellows who first came to Warren county and laid out Monmouth were mostly New Englanders. They were Biblical names. Gabriel Short was the first man to record the brand marks for his cattle. I saw the old book. He dropped off the ends of the ears of his live stock.

Here are some of his neighbors and kinsfolk—Abner Short, Adam Ritchie, Elijah Davidson, Jeremiah Smith, Erasmus S. Deniston, Joseph Whitman, Abraham Peckinpaugh, Ezekiel W. Lyon and Asa West. They sound like characters out of the Book of Lamentations.

Things have changed in many ways in Monmouth. Four concrete roads lead out in four directions. Monmouth township began building hard roads in 1892. These were of crushed stone. Brick roads were begun in 1897. This was rather early in the history of roadbuilding in the United States.

Monmouth is served by six railroads which give 44 passenger trains daily and one freight train. It is the first successful, profit-making transportation in the central west. It advertises a passenger rate of fifteen cents a mile. Compare that with your taxi bill. Aviators are schooled here and flying machines merchandised.

Monmouth college, seven years old, has about 5.0 students, forty acres of campus, good buildings, and has just completed a $250,000 gymnasium. The town's Y. M. C. A., not long built, cost $150,000.

Because of superior clay deposits the part of Illinois has made exceptional progress in the development of clay products. This is especially marked in such centers as Monmouth, Macomb and Abingdon. These cities are along the "divide" between the Illinois and Mississippi rivers.

The Western Stoneware Company operates two ceramic plants at Monmouth and one at Macomb. Because the early settlers planted many hard maple trees Monmouth has come to be known as the "Maple City." As a result it is the home of "Maple Leaf" brand stoneware. I visited the plant specializing in artware, and saw tons of art linens, lily bowls, console sets, bird vases, flower urns, novelty book ends, wall pockets, pitchers, jardinières and many other things.

Demand changes, I learned, in stoneware and clay products as in other things. Used to be there was a big business in fruit jars, preserve jars, etc. That's slipping now. Pretty things for display are more wanted.

Bird baths, ornamental pieces twenty-eight inches high to be placed out on the lawns are in favor. It gives the family, especially the youngsters, joy "to watch the birds taking their baths," says the advertising of the company.

This matter of joy seems to be playing a big part in many things. In clay products bright and colorful pieces are selling fast. Clay jugs to be made into vacuum packages, used for keeping liquids cool or hot on motor trips and at picnics, sell readily.

Many of the old, one-time standard items, long purchased for their strict utilitarian values, rather plain and sometimes even ugly, are passing out of the picture. Things have to be pretty and attractive today.

Here's a little story of getting ahead. It has to do with Oscar and Charlie Strand, born in Sweden, who arrived in Monmouth as boys. Oscar and Charlie decided to go into the baking business when they had saved up $500. They're still young men but they head a baking company known as Strand Bros., Inc., capital $100,000. Their estimated investment is $137,000. Their annual business is about $250,000. The business is 18 years old and they employ 32 people. They are spending $25,000 for improvements this year.

When they started they had a capacity of fifty loaves a day. The traveling oven they are just putting in will give them a capacity of 20,000 loaves a day. A traveling oven is one through which the loaves move steadily. You put the dough in at one end and the bread, baked, comes out at the other end, by an endless belt arrangement. The period of baking is regulated by the speed.

"We have the biggest bakery for a town of this size and the biggest volume of business for a town of this size anywhere in the United States. These are facts and can be proved."

Oscar or Charlie, I forget which, told me as he showed me through the plant. I asked him what his recipe for getting ahead was and he replied with one word:

"Hustle!"

Paraphrasing a familiar slang phrase, however, I might add that the Strand boys "know their buns."

Thermos bottles for chickens is something new to the most of us. I found in Monmouth a new plant just starting up, in fact I joined a party of local men on an inspection trip to the new plant, which is being started largely on chicken-yard novelties.

One of the chief articles of output is a large galvanized and insulated bottle with a baked clay water container inside. Fill it with hot water and invert it in your chicken yard. The hot water trickles very slowly into a compartment, regulated on the inside principle—and your chickens can have warm water to drink at any time even on the coldest day.

Among the other Monmouth products are cotton mittens, farm implements, bookkeeping forms, warm, air furnaces and stump pullers.

library, the central library being in Monmouth with twelve branches scattered through the farm districts, supported by a county tax. They told me in Monmouth that this is the only public library in Illinois financed under this plan.

Something else, unique in a way, is a Fall Festival held every year in Monmouth. It has all of the features of a country fair with the exception of horse races—and admittance is free.

Monmouth has 220 acres of public park, lying along a canyonlike stream. The park is highly picturesque, natural woodland, and scientists have found and named twenty nine varieties of native trees and shrubs within its border. The park was a gift to the city.

The world is small. This paragraph just pops in out of the day's news. Lole Fuller, daucesse, pal of Queen Marie on her trip, was born in Monmouth, her father proprietor of a hotel there. An old newspaper informs me she gave a temperance lecture in Monmouth in 1873 and the same year won first prize for waiting at a masquerade ball.

The Illinois Bankers Life Association, claimed to be the largest not-for-profit insurance organization in the state, with $110,000,000 insurance in force, makes it home in Monmouth. The city admits a population of 9,543. The government census of 1920 gave it 8,116.

Considerable change has come since Gabriel, Abner, Elijah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel and their brothers with Old Testament monikers paid from $4 to $12 each for Monmouth town lots.

(This is the eightieth of a series of articles written for the Illinois Chamber of Commerce entitled "Re-Discovering Illinois." Their purpose is to benefit, build and develop Illinois as a whole. The next will be published soon.)

GRAND PRIZES OF BOYS' FAIR ARE DETERMINED

And Toastmasters Get Congratulations For Their Work

The big event of the year in the Toastmasters' Club, the fair, is now a matter of history. From every standpoint the fair has been an exceptional success and the officers of the club are receiving many compliments for sponsoring such an idea for the boys, not only of the city but of the entire country as well. They have already received many requests to repeat the project next year.

The Judge's final decision, which gives a silver loving cup to the best pair of each of the four breeds of poultry, results as follows: The best pair of Rhode Island Reds goes to Stanley Lawton, who was sponsored by R. C. Webb; the silver loving cup for the Bred's Rocks goes to Eugene Rosinsky, sponsored by Dr. C. E. Smith; the cup for the White Wyandots goes to James Wolf, sponsored by Martin J. Gannon; and the cup for the White Leghorns goes to Charles Patterson, sponsored by J. N. Weiss. The cups will be presented to these boys in the very near future.

In the corn show, which attracted much attention in the fair, the grand prize and silver loving cup go to Mason Sivitts, who exhibited ten ears of yellow corn. The first prize for white corn went to Wallace Ely. The complete prize list for both white and yellow corn is as follows:

White, 1st prize—Wallace Ely.
White, 2nd prize—Merle Drex.
White, 3rd prize—Robert Spangler.
Yellow, 1st prize—Mason Sivitts.
Yellow, 2nd prize—Ben Smith, Jr.
Yellow, 3rd prize—Elmer Williams.

GYMNASIUM BUSY PLACE SATURDAY HONORS DIVIDED

Sterling and Freeport Players Mixed With Dixon Outfits

The gymnasium at the local "Y" was a busy place Saturday evening, with three towns represented on the floor. Dixon carried away the honors in volleyball, and although close all the way through, still the playing showed that Dixon was well in the lead. The scores for the game were as follows:

Dixon, 16; Freeport, 14.
Dixon, 13; Freeport, 15.
Dixon, 16; Freeport, 14.

Following the volleyball the Freeport basketball quintet made up for the honors lost by their seniors when they cleaned house with the Dixon team to the tune of 32 to 12. Nuff said.

The fast Sterling basketball team met the local senior team on the "Y" floor at 7:30. The game hung in the balance from start to finish and it was difficult to say just who would carry off the winning score, even up to the last minute. After the final whistle blew, the score stood, Dixon 11, Sterling 10, and this score well indicates the class of basketball that was played. The Dixon line-up was as follows:

R. F. Krug.
L. F. Shertner.
C. Joyce.
P. G. Newcomer.
L. G. VanBuskirk.

Don't Tell the Wife

BY WILLIAM B. COURTNEY
Copyright 1926 Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"DON'T TELL THE WIFE," starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS.
Ranny Forbes, star polo player, and his beautiful wife, Joan, are temperamental mismates. Joan wants a divorce, but Ranny confides to his chum, Clay, that he loves her. He secretly discovers that she loves another man, Abner Gratman, Stinson lumber king with whom Ranny has pending a gigantic business deal, wagers fifty thousand on Ranny's team in the International Match. Victory will mean business good will. Ranny learns that the wager is with—Abner Gratman! Abner maliciously causes Ranny a nasty fall. Ranny accuses Joan of accepting Stinson's yacht—this institution only because Abner is to be a guest—

There were too many people too near for Joan to throw her wanted tantrum. Yet the mere look of a married woman can sometimes be very eloquent, very soul blinding, very vicious and understood as such only by her husband. Joan's was!

Ranny felt rather as though a boomerang had smote him as he made his way moodily towards the paddock, faced with a polo game finish in which, if he played as he felt, he would probably lose the biggest business deal for which he had ever bid!

And faced, beyond that, with a yachting trip week-end in which, even if he felt better than he now did, he would probably lose his wife!

This frame of mind continued to hang down upon him like a lead as he mechanically mounted Judy, mechanically cantered to midfield and awaited the toss-in, and mechanically blocked and rode and stroked after the opening scrimmage had quickly melted into one of those dazzling and wide-scattered dashes, hither and thither the ball came within an inch of his nose.

The white ball, that the bewildering medley of ex- sistent and color which make so alluring to those men, eases, and spectators who know it.

"Better if young Drake had stayed in!" criticized the spectators amongst themselves; "Ranny's dead in his saddle!"

Just then the ball, glancing off an Argentine mallet, swished through the air and came within an inch of taking Ranny's nose in its flight. It served to do two things: rouse Ranny's playing instinct, and demonstrate to the watchers that he was not dead but moping.

After stopping Judy up so short that her forelegs left the ground, like an overbalanced wheelbarrow, Ranny paused only long enough to glance down, cross-eyed, and make sure that his nose was intact.

Then he gave the eager Judy her head in a mad pursuit of the ball.

Forgotten Abner. Forgotten the moral responsibility of Stinson's huge bet. Forgotten Joan. Mr. Ranny Forbes was again wholeheartedly and whole-mindedly the polo star par excellence.

A blazing and elusive star, indeed, who demanded the most brilliant attentions of the whole Argentine galaxy. A comet that threatened to shower in sparkling glory across the Argentine goal at any moment, and was held the slightest bit off his course only by reckless and spectacular play hardly less marvelous than his own.

Never before had an International final been so bitterly, so madly, fought; through the fifth, sixth, and seventh chukkers the score remained a dead tie, and the furious pace was maintained until the spectacle on the field blurred for the tensely wrought spectators into a streaking race of frenzied dervishes and insane ponies.

Into the eighth and last chukker they swept. Each player had a fresh mount for this last desperate attempt; but it seemed incredible that the men themselves could live through another seven and a half minutes of such wild play without dropping from their saddles. But the blood of the Spartans lives today—if at all—in the fibre of polo thoroughbreds, men and ponies.

Quick Thinking Needed in Movie Title Writing
Hollywood, Cal. (AP)—As situations flash through a fast moving photoplay, the motion picture title writer injects himself into them and speaks for the characters.

Speed makes his art peculiar. The author takes his time with a limited number of characters and the actor studies his role. But the title writer thinks situationally and the characters he speaks for are without number.

An outstanding figure in this new profession is H. H. Caldwell who,

Then Ranny flamed! An encouraging shout from Stinson, once when the play thundered near the side board, acted as a powder match.

He felt suddenly bitterly sick of the selfishness of this great man, whose paramount thought evidently was upon his wages.

He felt sick of Abner Gratman, the sneaking interloper.

He felt sick of Joan, the wife who thought so little of him that she could sit and flirt with a slinky runt while her husband played a man's part on a man's field.

He would show them something—one and all! Then he would smash the ball at Abner's head, if he were within shot, and then go away to Patagonia or Petrograd or some place and join a revolution. If there were no revolutions, he'd make one.

Swish—crack! The echo of his clean, strong hit tinkled on the crisp autumn air; and before it died away it was taken up and blended with the pounding beats of Judy's flying hoofs.

The Argentine defense concentrated upon him. But if the nimble and infinitely sagacious little Judy had been coated with grease, she could not have slipped more easily in and out between the straining opponents at the veriest touch of Ranny's spurs.

It was a weird, miraculous exhibition. A man and his pony acting as one indivisible unit!

Blocked by the full brunt of the Argentine team from a straight rally, Ranny deftly dribbled the ball zig-zag across the field—always just out of the reach of the Argentine mallets; Judy always slipping by just a hairbreadth from the Argentine stirrups.

The crowd, realizing that it was witnessing the greatest individual rally in all the bright history of Long Island polo, forgot its etiquette inhibitions and went into an uproar more reminiscent of college football than of society's polo matches.

Debbie! Dribble! Smart short hits, at unexpected angles; baffling turns. Always nearer and nearer to the Argentine goal; always nearer to a complete demoralization of the great Argentine team, whose defense was being shattered into smithereens by one man and one pony who rode more like knights than like flesh and blood.

Now Ranny was back again on the side of the field where his sedan was parked. He hustled the ball in a beautifully direct line down field just inside the board.

A wild-eyed Argentine rider and snorting pony loomed ahead. Ranny adroitly cut the ball past the defending mallet, deeper into the field, still past with Judy, and—before the Argentine could wheel—crowded back towards the board, and tore on! on!

His swirling rush had left the other players, friend and foe alike, far behind now; and it had broken down at last the beautiful teamwork defense of the Argentines.

No one loomed ahead of him. Far off to Ranny's right the Argentine Captain was fleeing down the center of the field on a mad race to try and thrust himself and his pony in front of the goal and thus block Ranny's coming shot. But it was a hopeless errand. He could not expect to beat the ball to the paper mache posts. Ranny knew it. The crowd knew it. The Argentine Captain himself knew it. Yet on he pounded. That was the dauntless spirit of polo.

The moment for which Ranny, in his wild, had been directing his course, came. Without the slightest slackening of his whirlwind speed, he deliberately smashed the ball into the side board.

His sureness of stroke and purpose were as skillful as that of the most expert billiardist on a saloon table. The ball caromed off, deep into the field, and rolled in a dead line and angle towards the Argentine goal, so that all there remained for Ranny to do now was to let Judy head in towards mid-field, approaching the ball on his hitting side. Then it would be merely up to him to make a straight smash, so sure and simple that the greenest amateur could not dub it.

Judy knew what to do without any hint from her rider. Holding her nose low and whistling through it, she streaked after the ball.

Ranny upswung his mallet. The crowd was in a ferment. Even those portly or biased spectators who had stayed, up to this point, in their cars got out and excitedly crowded close to the board.

None of that enthralled multitude but was out of his car and on his toes, watching. None, that is, except two, whose interest lay not in the outcome of Ranny's mallet brilliance but in the fond lights of each other's eyes.

Out of the corner of his gleaming, triumphant, game-bound eyes Ranny saw these two just at the moment he reared in to make his killing shot. He was abreast of his sedan in that instant.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN of Pendleton University wages war on JUDITH MARTIN, young English teacher, because of her friendship for ERIC WATERS, radical student leader.

DR. DORN, astronomy professor, is attracted to Judith and tries to convert her to orthodoxy.

MYRA ALDRICH is jealous of Eric's attentions to Judith and turns her energies to vamping Dr. Dorn.

When Mrs. Brown is black mailed by "KITTY" SHEA, town bootlegger, Judith befriends her, and asks Eric to silence her.

Shea is found dead in a creek, and a letter in his pocket leads to the arrest of Eric as material witness.

Mrs. Brown secures his release by providing an alibi for him which endangers her reputation. Her story is kept secret by the prosecutor.

When Dr. Dorn is arguing with Judith in her classroom, over the reform campaign which the dean is planning, he says Eric is to blame for every mistake she has made.

Eric appears in the door, smiling insolently.

NO GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLII

ERIC stood just inside the door, one hand in his pocket. Judith saw that he was extremely pale and that he swayed unsteadily on his feet.

He smiled lazily at Dorn and Judith. When they did not answer, he walked past them to the benches and began to rummage about.

"Somebody's swiped my Horace poetry," he muttered. "I left it here. It was a damn good little trot too."

Judith was watching him, horrified. He smiled at the expression of her face, and came toward her. "Ready for me to take you home now, Buttercup?" he asked, ignoring the professor.

Dr. Dorn took a slow step forward. "Miss Martin isn't going yet. Waters. She's going home with me. When we finish talking."

Eric raised ironic brows at him. "Zat so?" he sneered. Then he turned his back on the professor. "Ready, Jude?"

The girl could not speak. Her worried gaze traveled from Eric to Dorn and back again. Eric took the same indolent pose in front of Judith's desk, swaying on his heels.

Dr. Dorn advanced upon him. "It's time for you to be leaving Waters," he said, calmly. "Miss Martin and I want to talk."

"Fine," answered Eric, flippantly. "If you haven't finished razzing me to Judith, I'll just stand by and let her do it."

Dr. Dorn shot out a long arm and grasped Eric's collar. With the other hand he jerked open the door and sent Eric sprawling into the hall. Then he closed the door again and turned to Judith. "This is a vulgar mess. I'm sorry it had to be done," he said. "I'm also sorry you insist on looking at that young cur with rose-colored glasses. If you're ready, I'll take you home now."

Judith threw her head back. "You have no right to supervise my selection of friends," she said. "And as for that 'cur,' he at least has the courage to fight for anyone he loves."

The professor laughed. "Yes, we've just had a good example of his fighting powers."

She pushed past him and left the room. Then Dr. Dorn came up, a moment later, he found her holding Eric's head in her lap, and rubbing his hands frantically. The boy's eyes were closed and his face was white, save where the scar above the left eye still showed livid.

The professor bent over Eric, but Judith pushed his hand away. "You brute," she said, "he's fainted."

Dr. Dorn answered calmly. "No, he hasn't. He's drunk."

Judith bent over Eric's lips. Then she drew back from his whiskey-laden breath.

"I'll get a taxicab for him," said Dr. Dorn, coolly. "or I'll rub his hands while you get one."

"No you won't," snapped Judith. "You've done enough damage for one day. I'll manage him."

The professor looked at her for a moment, and then, with a shrug, walked away.

When he was out of sight, Judith made for the telephone booth down the hall. She got the Sigma Psi house after several moments of ringing, and asked for Will Wetherell. He greeted her facetiously, but paused when he heard her breathless words.

"Why, sure I'll come. Just sit tight and try to keep him out of sight. I'll meet you at the east door with a cab in less than fifteen minutes."

When she reached Eric again, he was sitting up, leaning weakly against the wall. "What's matter with me, Jude? Where's that damn schoolteacher?" He closed his eyes wearily and again slumped to the floor.

Judith tried to rouse him. She pulled at his arms, shook him, tried with all her strength to lift him to his feet. At last his eyes flickered open again, and with a scowl he said "What's matter?"

"Get up," said Judith, sharply. He laboriously heaved his body to an upright position, and, gathering his repugnance, Judith put her arm under his and began the long walk down the stairs. It was precarious going, for Eric hung heavily upon her and the steps were almost in total darkness. Once he said to her, pitiously, "I'm not drunk. I'm sick."

The glass doors of the eastern entrance glimmered in front of them, when the sound of a motor horn outside brought Judith relief. Wetherell sprang to her aid and, without a word, Eric was transferred from her arm to his. She was turning back when Wetherell asked, "Aren't you coming too?"

Judith shook her head. "I don't want to see any more of him like this. I'm going to my classroom for my things. Then I'll leave by the other door. Thank you for coming."

She shot the bolts into place and turned back into the hall. She had progressed some twenty yards down the passage when she saw Dean Brown standing in the open door of his office.

He beckoned to Judith calmly, as if he had been waiting for her. He did not step out of her way until she had nearly reached the door. Then he retreated slowly and stood at one side until she had passed into the room.

The interior study was in heavy shadow, its ponderous desk and chairs looming blackly in their places. The dean reached for the green-shaded desk lamp, and a circle of light sprang out of the blackness.

He sat down heavily in the swivel chair, and his face, under the green-shaded bulb, was stolid and gray, like a sleeping stone gargoye. Outside the circle of light the room was in deepest gloom.

He began to speak. "There are many things to be discussed between us, Miss Martin. The incident this afternoon makes it necessary for me to speak at once." Judith stiffened.

"I do not permit my women teachers to titter about the buildings after closing time with men students. I hope that is quite clear. I do not know who your companion of this afternoon may have been, nor do I know why you were walking almost in his embrace. I only know that the performance was unseemly, and must not happen again."

Judith smiled very faintly. The dean saw the smile.

"That is not the worst indictment against you," he began, his voice rising still more harshly. "From the beginning, I have not considered your conduct appropriate to your position. I have information which, if presented to the board of curators, would result in your instant dismissal."

"If I present it to them, it will be because you have forced me to do it, much against my will."

He gave her a quick glance. "You are prepared, I hope, to do our share of the work in the reform campaign?"

Judith bit her lip. "What is my share?" she asked, after a moment.

"House-to-house canvassing the week before the meeting. All the new instructors will make four-minute speeches at the boarding houses to arouse interest in the great revival. I am placing your name on the list."

"You needn't," said Judith. "I won't do it."

The dean rose, bumping the lamp so that it jerked its circle of light wildly about the room. "Do you realize that your place in this university rests on my approval?" he said.

"You cannot discharge a satisfactory teacher by refusing to make speeches," drawled Judith.

The dean leaned far over the table toward her. "But what of the other charges, the weekend trip with Waters? Only my kindness of heart prevented me from taking those before the curators long before this."

Judith laughed harshly. "Not your kindness. Your wife prevented you."

"There is another matter, Miss Martin. I think I saw you in front of my home today."

Judith nodded. "You did."

"My wife wishes me to say that henceforth, your visits will be unwelcome."

She shot the bolts into place and turned back into the hall. She had progressed some twenty yards down the passage when she saw Dean Brown standing in the open door of his office.

Sam Good Friday evening. Those present were Ruth Lang, Jessie Mon, Blanche Ackerson, Mabel Dew, Nora Newcomer, Anna Gravenstine, Isabelle Adams, Bertha Bomberger, Mabel Samuel, Verona Kredel and Avis Albright. The regular business meeting was held at which time the dues—Jessie Mon; Vice President—following officers were elected: Presi-

Isabelle Adams; Secretary—Anna Gravenstine; Treasurer—Ruth Lang. After the business meeting a grab bag was the feature of the evening's entertainment.

Harry Lowman of Lanark was a business caller here Thursday.

Mrs. Lillian Clapper spent the past several days in Mendota with her brother, Robert Allen and wife—K.

Harry Emerson Fosdick. The American people, he says, hold nearly a third of the wealth of the human race, but there are six times as many murders in New York as in London.

Bridgeport, Conn.—Anglo Saxons are too con-elited, thinks Bishop Hughes of Chicago; they claim most of the credit for the United States being the wealthiest and most powerful nation.

Rome—Fascists must admire West Point. They are urging that Mussolini institute a school similar to the American military academy in order to develop promising youths into an autocracy of faith and ability that will guide the ship of state.

Bucharest—Sir Rabindranath Tagore thinks the United States is selfish; its people are too occupied with business and have no time to live.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa—Perhaps Coach Young of Penn would have a wonder team with such backs doing his hidden ball stuff. The Coe back-field consists of two pairs of twins.

NO MORE PILES

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. Dr. Leonard's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds because it relieves this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has a wonderful record for quick, safe and lasting relief to pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. Rowland's Pharmacy and druggist anywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee—Adv.
